

Frank Beddor Marathon

By David J. Neff on October 8, 2009 4:58 PM

Hey Gang,

The folks over at Automatic Pictures Publishing were nice enough to send us "Hatter M: Mad with Wonder Vol II" and "The Looking Glass Wars: Arch Enemy" by Frank Beddor. Let me tell you these are some really cool books and graphic novels. I read them both in a weekend. Frank has a great style of writing and from the looks of things he is the Jack White of the book world, with graphic novels, novels, films and trading cards all in his arsenal. Each book is set in a world where Alice in Wonderland is a real alternate reality to ours. But the person who wrote Alice in Wonderland got it all wrong from the spelling of Alice's name (Alyss) to who the Mad Hatter really was (a sect of royal body guards).

I enjoyed the graphic novel a lot better than the book but was pretty lost jumping in at book two. My only negative would be that towards the end of the books Frank shoves a lot in. Trying to sell you on book 3 as well as the novels, the audio books, a iphone app and the trading cards. It's like a shamwow commerical at the end of a great book. All in all check it out. Not exactly horror, but a great dark alternate world.

So have any of you read all the books or graphic novels? What did you think?

Categories
Interesting